ROOSEVELT BEGINS TO DISPLAY HIS ANGER

President Roosevelt is not taking the recent Supreme Court decisions on features of his new deal with much grace. There is evidence that he is smarting under the lash given the New Dealers when he says: "We are returning to the horse and buggy days."

He assumes the attitude that the future of the nation is in doubt because his "noble experiments" have not only failed but were illegal from the day they were forced on the nation. In one or more of his "Fireside Chats," he plainly stated early in his administration that if he found the experiments unsatisfactory he would be the first to seek some other method.

With this promise in mind the nation was willing to follow plans that were somewhat questionable, probably regarded then as unconstitutional, but practicable. As time wore on it was plainly evident that he was unwilling to admit serious blunders and continued to force industry and citizens to submit to his dictatorial powers. Now that he jests with the slurring remarks that "horse and buggy days" are ahead of us, it might be well to recall just what happened in that period.

If we recall history correctly it was during the days of horse drawn vehicles that we made our greatest progress. It was the time when the canal boat as well as the river tug that handled our freight, only to be succeeded by the modern railroad. It was during those days that the telephone and telegraph brought us communication. When we left the "horse and stage coach days," we had better and quicker transportation for our mails.

The horse drawn vehicle served a slow purpose over mud roads but later we had the graveled pikes only to see the demand for macadam, cement and brick roads come with the automobile that displaced the horse. During the period the President slightly refers, the nation made its greatest progress—in manufacturing, farming, education and religion. It was the days our forefathers cleared the land and laid the basis of the wealth for the new America.

It was back in the stage coach days that our constitution was written, the first of its kind the world had ever known. From that start we have grown to the greatest nation in the world, yet the Chief Executive, smarting over the curtailing of his dictatorial powers by the Supreme Court, would have you believe we are going backwards. The demand for rewriting the constitution does not come from the people. It is from the so-called braintrusts that had Roosevelt all but crowned as dictator under the New Deal. With the latest quip from Roosevelt we must now admit there is a question of honesty of purpose in the New Deal.

He has permitted himself to be surrounded by theorists that are almost one hundred percent un-American. His conservative Democratic supporters of the past have been cast aside, refusing their advice. He has consistently ignored his campaign promises. He advocated new laws governing the exchange market and in turn named a professional operator to head the governing board. On the inside behind a screen he has counseled with one Baruch, Wall Street operator, yet at times cast reflections against the "Street." To keep the hand of government on the "Street" he placed "Gasbag" Johnson head of the New Deal, an associate of Baruch, that companies with millions of watered stock could control industry in their lines to insure profits against conservatively operated smaller concerns. It was for the support of the over financed Wall Street companies that the Blue Eagle was hatched and a Wall Street banker placed at the head of the NRA board. Small business was headed for oblivion but it could not be crushed as planned.

The Supreme Court has torn a mantle of deception from the New Deal and left naked a list of double dealing buzzards that find themselves with their prey.

It may be the "horse and buggy days" but it will not be a Wall Street holiday under the terms of the New Deal. Roosevelt has been trapped by the crafty Baruch who sold him the Wall Street plan of control for industry as had been approved by former President Hoover, and his Secretary of Commerce, Julius Klein.

The nation had little to fear from old-fashioned Democracy of the horse and buggy days but it wants little of the Roosevelt brain-trust brand that brought us dictatorship.

HAVE MEN THE RIGHT TO WORK?

The number of strikes that have been fomented much as the result of the New Deal program brings up the question: "What guarantee is there that a man has a right to work?"

In scores of cases where strikes have been ordered a large per cent of the employees have signified their willingness to continue work but are prohibited due to the fact that violence has been given unofficial government approval making it unsafe due to picketing.

In most of the strike situations it is not a question of hours of labor or of wages but an endeavor to force all employees to join some union. Industry has not been the only target, the object of attack in the employees that probably refuse to join a labor union.

While strikes have been numerous under the Roosevelt administration, union leaders being given more or less protection to gain or hold the labor vote, there will be no end of trouble if congress enacts the Wagner labor bill. Here is where individual rights will pass out of existence. Neither the management of industry or those who desire to labor, will have any rights. Each employee will be compelled to join the union and the management must deduct the weekly union fees from payrolls and remit same to union headquarters.

We do not hold to the theory that labor has no right to organize but certainly this country does not want the time to arrive when every employee of a factory must join a union whether he desires or not.

President Roosevelt has given his approval of the Wagner labor law in congress, which will no doubt be declared unconstitutional just as soon as it reaches court. With the Wagner labor measure enforced we are taking a backward step—deeper into the depression. It will only provide a legal method for labor organizers to ply their racket. Judging the labor union vote in plants where strikes have been called, only about four per cent of the total employees belong to the American Federation of Labor unions.

CREPE DISPLAYED—CORPSE REMOVED BY COURT

The continued display of the NRA on newspapers and places of business following the decision of the Supreme Court which ended the life of the labor union racket upon industry, is much like displaying the crepe on the door little days after the corpse has been interred.

It is amusing to read of some of the announcements of manufacturers desiring to continue NRA policies. We noticed one newspaper announcement a few days ago over the signature of the head of a company stating there would be no change in wages or working conditions. This same company following the adoption of the NRA suffered a strike and the management refused to deal with strikers or government leaders. The head of the company closed down the plant and left for Europe. Weeks afterwards a government representative called on this president while in France urging him to put labor back to work. He refused even then to recognize the NRA representative. Upon his return to his home city employees petitioned the management to reopen the plant, which was done.

Now we read a newspaper announcement that the company will make no change with labor or wages. The question is not only with the company in question but others. "Was there at any time observance of NRA, other than on price tags?"

THE CHURCH AND THE AMERICAN LEGION

By Charles Everett Hill,
 Pastor Methodist Episcopal Church,
 Cedarville, Ohio

I wonder if the Church is doing all it ought to do to reach an understanding with the members of the American Legion who are trying to be loyal both to it and to the Church?

Of course we cannot compromise our convictions. We are humiliated as we think of the lying propaganda we believed and repeated publicly to create the war spirit in 1917-18. We feel that we could not take at face value the statements of our government if it were to try again to work up hatred toward another nation. If we were to be pushed towards war by foolish stunts like building "camouflaged" fighting-plane bases near the Canadian border, in plain violation of treaty pledges, as proposed to Congress by generals at the head of our army, we could not think of fighting as the proper way to vindicate our "national honor." But let us not forget that we did encourage our young men to go with alacrity into the World War. They were represented by stars on the "Honor Roll" in our Churches. We visited them in training camps to encourage them and assure them they were engaged in a righteous enterprise, and we looked with unsympathetic eyes upon the "conscientious objectors" who were imprisoned behind high wire fences, the gazette-stock of all patriotic observers. Our prayers followed our soldiers overseas. We rejoiced in their victories. We received them with glad acclaim when they came home. Then gradually the truth leaked out that we had not been fighting "to make the world safe for Democracy." Fascism and other dictatorships multiplied. The military theory that the masses must be regimented and reduced to unquestioning obedience was carried over into the civil life of today. In every land there are many who in the name of patriotism would deny freedom of speech and of the press, although in this country they are guaranteed by the Constitution. We found it had not been "war to end war."

The treaty of Versailles sowed a crop of dragon's teeth, and unless it is modified peacefully it must lead to conflict in the not distant future. Then we learned that he had been used by the munition makers and the bankers, who were getting afraid they might not be able to collect from the Allies. They "got out" by getting us in. They got their money, but the money we loaned to our government, and which our government loaned to our Allies, is not being repaid, and in all probability never will be paid. When these facts came to light we became disgusted with the evil-smelling mess. But let us not forget that our soldiers, who fought in that war on our behalf, and our warm approval, were not to blame. They did heroically the dirty, bloody, nerve-shattering, heart-breaking job we sent them into, and they deserve our respect, and gratitude, as truly as do the soldiers of any other war in which our country has been engaged.

And they (especially those who borrowed in dugouts, and "waded in muddy trenches, and "went over the top") do not want another war. They deserve much credit for the constructive plans they have proposed for "taking the profits out of war" and otherwise removing certain causes for war. From my limited experience I believe that if we approach our Legion members in this spirit they are willing to meet us half way, and even if we cannot agree upon all points—even if they think we are being influenced by mythical "reds"—we can be friends and co-workers.

and girls will become through an education provided by a wet revenue?—Conway (Ark.) News.

"Dr. B. H. Bruner in his recent book 'Toward the Sunrise' says: 'We have allowed a few men and agencies with their high-powered propaganda to head us back toward the Egypt of another period of complete bondage to the legalized liquor traffic and a sure harvest of tragedy and suffering lies ahead of us.'"

"The sluices of the grogshop are fed from the wine-glasses in the parlor, and there is a lineal descent from the gentleman who hiccoughs at his elegant dinner table to the sot who makes a bed of the gutter?"—E. H. Chapin, D.D.

The Rev. W. M. Hendricks, pastor of our Community Church, Bellevue, Pa., sends us a clipping from the Post-Gazette of Pittsburgh, May 11th. It contains two whiskey advertisements, between which was an advertisement for a headache cure. Mr. Hendricks no doubt saw a bit of humor in these advertisements. A good place for a headache cure, for many a headache has followed a night of drink and dissipation.

Repeal has been a success thus far in proving to the country that it has been a perfect failure or as another has said: "Repeal has succeeded in turning the America's grocery into a grocery; in putting beer on the same shelf with butter-milk; in substituting gin for ginger-ale, booze for bops, malt for meat, hard-liquor for hardware, rum for a rare-bit."

"If for twenty years there were no new slaves of alcohol dragged from the ranks of youth, the chains of the powerful liquor interests would be shattered and destroyed," said the noted surgeon, Dr. Charles Mayo. This is the reason the liquor traffic is doing everything in its power to create an appetite for liquor among the boys and girls today.

Regent "Hit"

Ginger Rogers, star of "Roberta," "Gay Divorcee," and other recent screen hits, has been co-starred by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer with William Powell, who had the leading roles in such successes as "The Thin Man," "Philo Vance," "Reckless" and other pictures, in the latest M-G-M production, "Star of Midnight," a splendid picture based on the sensational Redhook Magazine story of the same title.

"Star of Midnight" will open a week's engagement at the Regent theater, Springfield, Friday, affording moviegoers throughout this section the opportunity of enjoying this latest mystery drama hit.

Warner Baxter, favorite screen actor with many theatregoers, is the star of "Under the Pampas Moon," a new picture coming to the State theater, Springfield, for a 4-day engagement opening Saturday. Ketti Gallian, a new cinema star, plays opposite Baxter in this film and they are said to form one of the screen's most enjoyable romantic teams.

All week-end attractions opening engagements on Saturdays at the State theater are shown free at Friday night preview for the "Owl Show" audiences.

Miss Kathryn Sanders Bride at June Wedding, Saturday

Miss Kathryn Sanders, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Allen, became the bride of Mr. Dale Reider, Orrville, O., in an impressive service, solemnized at the home of the bride's parents on Xenia avenue Saturday afternoon at four o'clock.

Some forty guests, including relatives and friends of the couple, witnessed the single ring ceremony performed by Rev. W. R. McCaskey, assisted by Rev. Dwight R. Guthrie, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church.

Proceeding the ceremony Mrs. W. J. Cherry, Federal Pike, sang two songs, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. William Anderson, Xenia. Mrs. John S. Harvey played the wedding march from Lohengrin, as the bride and bridegroom, and officiating ministers took their places before the mantle in the living room, where the service was read. The mantelpiece was decorated with white summer flowers and fernery.

The bride's gown, worn by her grand mother, Mrs. Catherine Mock Boteler, sixty-eight years ago, and by her mother, the former Miss Grace Boteler in 1893, was of white tulle and ivory satin. The hooped skirt was fashioned with six notched ruffles, bound with ivory satin. The front panel of the skirt was plain while the back was fashioned into a train four yards in length.

The waist of the gown was fashioned with a long-tailed basque bound with white satin and trimmed with tiny white satin ruffles and bows and tiny white buttons. The long sleeves fitted snugly at the shoulders and were flowing at the wrist.

Quaint white kid shoes, worn by the bride's grandmother and mother, were also worn by the bride. Her veil of white net was caught with a cap encircled by a wreath of orange blossoms. She wore a bar pin of gold and ebony worn by her great grandmother, Mrs. Martha Boteler in 1836 and also wore a quaint handkerchief ring, an old-fashioned ornament. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses and forget-me-nots.

Following the service light refreshments were served and later Mr. and Mrs. Reider left by motor for a trip through the East. They will be at home in Orrville, O., after June 10th.

Mrs. Reider is a talented musician and composer and has been supervisor of music in the Orrville public schools for the past five years. She attended Ohio State University, and graduated from Capital University, Columbus, and the department of music of Wittenberg College, Springfield. She is a member of Alpha Xi Delta Sorority. Mr. Reider attended Ohio State University, and is now connected with the Orrville-Condensing Co.

Guests from out-of-town at the wedding were: Miss Kathryn Strong and Mr. Edward Glass, Cincinnati; Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Sanders and daughter, Betty Jean, Columbus; Mr. and Mrs. Norman Sanders and daughter and son, Norman and Boteler, Cleveland; Mrs. J. S. Harvey, Huntington, W. Va.; Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Cherry and Mrs. William Anderson, Xenia; Mrs. James Watkins, Jeffersonville; Mrs. Willis McDorman, Jamestown.

Historical Mileposts

Of Ohio

By C. S. Van Tassel (Copyrighted)

Although he came as a private citizen, the reception accorded General Lafayette, on his last visit to America, furnishes no parallel in history even to this day.

He arrived in New York Harbor on the morning of August 16, 1824, and from Washington and the Potomac, in September, 1825, with a bright morning sky overhead, sailed away as he viewed the American shoreline for the last time.

He visited every State in the Union, and in every city and hamlet was accorded an ovation without precedent. It was late February, 1825, that he left the National Capitol on his southern and western tour. Bidding farewell to the tomb of Washington, his intimate and beloved, he is found finally at New Orleans. Up the broad Mississippi, he surveyed the passing scenes in wonderment. Baton Rouge, the mouth of the Ohio on April 28th, Kaskaskia and St. Louis, and back on the Ohio in the Steamer Mechanic.

It was dark midnight; there was a terrific shock, and the Mechanic shivered in every fiber. The passengers were in a panic and Lafayette, awakened from sound slumber after strenuous days, was told the boat had struck a snag and was sinking. But, he was calm, and one of the last to leave the stranded craft. Not discovering his son, George, whose safety was his only concern, all on board were landed in the forest at the Ohio's edge.

After spending a most disagreeable night, the fifty passengers were rescued by the boat Paragon. From a tour of Kentucky, Lafayette reached Cincinnati, where there was a hand clasp by Governor Morrow, who received him as "the constant friend of our country, of national liberty and the rights of mankind."

The general's two days stay at Cincinnati was filled with honors overflowing. He had planned an overland trip to Chillicothe, Columbus, Lancaster, and Zanesville but due to Boston for the Bunker Hill Monument corner-stone laying, time was too short, so the General continued up the Ohio in the Steamer Herald.

At Gallipolis, he was entertained at the home of Congressman Samuel F. Vinton and his arrival at Marietta was announced by the booming of cannon and ringing of bells. Schools were dismissed and the address of welcome was most aptly responded to by the distinguished guest. Nearly the whole populace lined the river banks as the Steamer Herald proceeded up the Ohio for Wheeling, amidst the roar of artillery and the shouts of farewell.

SHERILL REPORT COMING

Davey asked that business lend some of its executives to make a survey to determine where state government can be simplified and operated in a more economical manner at a saving to taxpayers. Col. C. He had been a successful city manager in Cincinnati and had a successful career with the federal government. The survey has been completed and will be presented to Gov. Davey about June 15th. Already state officeholders are lining up politicians against any radical change.
